THE MISSION OF ST. JOHN'S LUTHERAN CHURCH

Through Jesus Christ, we

proclaim God's Word,

encourage one another in faith,

witness to God's love and serve all people.

Message from Pastor James

What could happen if we as a congregation began to work together at becoming "Kingdom Focused?" What could we achieve if we had a singular goal of bringing souls, currently lost in the wilderness, into the Kingdom of God to bask in the life and salvation He alone provides.

Growing in our faith is always something on which we should always work. Lent is often a time to: regroup, consider where we are, where we should be, and how we should get there. Many of you have been praying one Psalm a day since October. That list will end on Wednesday February 26 – Ash Wednesday.

On Ash Wednesday I would like the whole congregation to begin a "journey of faith" together. The Sunday services and Bible Study during Lent will focus on something called the "Red Letter Challenge." During the six weeks of Lent we will explore six facets of faith including:

- 1) Jesus' Words being the Foundation of our life.

- 2) Being with Jesus improves our personal being. It produces the fruits of the Spirit.
- 3) Following Jesus builds Generosity. It is impossible to follow Jesus with a closed fist.
- 4) His way will help us to be better Serving the congregation and community.
- 5) Jesus calls is to do His work. Going toward being a part of His mission.

RED LETTER

- 6) Finally Jesus teaches that His Forgiveness has no limit.

What if, instead of "giving something up" for Lent we as a congregation chose to dig deeper into God's Word? What could happen if we spent 40 days putting the words of Jesus into personal practice in our lives, and in the life of this congregation?

Even if you've read through the book before taking the journey again can only be more helpful and productive. Join the St. John's family as we reintroduce ourselves to a person. That person is Jesus the Author and Perfector of our faith, who for the joy that was set before Him endured the cross, despising its shame, and is seated at the right hand of the throne of God.[Hebrews 12:2] This is what Lent and Easter are truly about. It is about the Way, the Truth, and the Life showing us the way of salvation, the truth of God's Word, and life eternal for all who call on His name.

Seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things will be added to you. [Matthew 6:33]

Pastor James.

LEAPING INTO MORE "GREAT NEWS" OF 2020!

God is giving each of us an additional day this month, as you know. It's LEAP YEAR! What does God plan for each of us to do and say on February 29? He will open the doors, and we can be watching for new opportunities to use our gifts. How IS it going for you, having identified your personal DNA/ dominant Spiritual Redemptive Gift, as a member of TEAM-St. John's? If you did not complete the easy Questionnaire in mid-November, there ARE copies still available. Ask Darrel Bahn or Carol Schleicher for a copy, WITH the answer-sheet. With Stan R. gone for a few months, we are the only two on the present Stewardship Board. If you'd like to be asked to help with a current need at church, please consider this... that "ask." Our Stewardship Board meets at St. John's on the "first Wednesday" at 9:00 A.M.---February 5, 2020, in other words. (We will not meet in March, waiting for Stan's return, and meeting in late April.)

Ephesians 2:10----"For we are God's workmanship, created in Christ Jesus to do good works, which God prepared in advance for us to do."

1 John 4:7----"Dear friends, let us love one another, for love comes from God. Everyone who loves, has been born of God and knows God."

Romans 8:28----"And we know that in all things, God works for the good of those who love Him, who have been called according to His purpose."

These Bible verses remind me of a very special couple, who have used their gifts among us for many years. They've moved to a street named "Journey's End," and on our December road-trip to Florida, we found them. How great to hug... and to be hugged by Gene and Lois Auringer again! They are doing well, and their daughter Lynn and family opened their home to them. We Schleichers were blessed by Gene's stories and "proclaiming gift." Lois's "giving gift" brought tears and smiles. Auringers teach all of us that we are never too old or too far away to share God's love with other people. In this month of "an extra day in which to share the love of Christ," how about using YOUR new-found dominant gift to give back to God what He's created in you? It shouldn't be difficult. Our Triune God leads us, with His wisdom and strength.

TAKE IT TO THE LORD IN PRAYER. DO YOU HAVE A PRAYER CONCERN OR THANKSGIVING? COMMEND IT TO THE LORD THROUGH YOUR OWN PRAYERS, BUT ALSO THROUGH THE LOVING SERVICE OF OUR PRAYER CHAIN. IF YOU HAVE AN ITEM YOU WOULD LIKE INCLUDED ON THE PRAYER CHAIN, PLEASE CONTACT MIRIAM LUEHMANN AT 437-7619 OR Miriam.Luehmann@icloud.com.

FROGs (Faithful Retired Old Guys)

LWML NEWS

Valentines Day! A time when I make heart cookies for my family. They are decorated with their names and candy. It's a reminder to them of how much I love them.

As we serve each other with love, we are serving and showing our love for the Lord. What wonderful opportunities we have to love each other by serving.

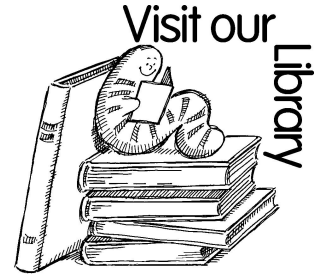

To continue to be able to show our love for each other we have divided Christian Service Committee #3 into #1 and #2. This is to have enough helpers to work. Men are a great treasure to help work also. We also will not be asking for cakes anymore. If you have any questions about this contact Fran Strouf or myself.

Ash Wednesday is the end of February this year. We thank all the boards for their serving and sharing their love for their church family.

Happy love month! In Christ, Sandy Grant

From Our Library

"The Case for Christ" as the cover says is a journalist's personal investigation of the evidence for Jesus. For me, it was not a fast paced book to be read like a story, but filled with many facts concerning the validity of the life of our Lord and Savior. Lee Strobel considered himself an atheist and was intent on proving Jesus was not the Son of God. Lee's professional job as a newspaper reporter led him down many paths to find the truth about Jesus. As he proceeded to interview experts around the country and Europe he soon discovered his mind was changing. He will challenge you as you read the book.

"The Case for Christ" is found in our church's library. When you finish ask yourself "how much has my faith been strengthened?" You will probably be surprised.

National Lutheran Schools Week

The Lutheran Church—Missouri Synod • Jan. 26–Feb. 1, 2020 • 1 Thess. 5:16–24

National Lutheran Schools Week provides nearly 2,000 preschools, elementary schools and high schools with the public opportunity to proclaim and celebrate God's work among us in schools of The Lutheran Church—Missouri Synod.

We thank God for the opportunity to provide excellent academic preparation for the children we serve. We are most grateful for the opportunity to share Jesus' amazing love with children and their families.

National Lutheran Schools Week gives us an opportunity to proclaim these great blessings within the communities we serve.

Our schools are amazing incubators for faithful witness of God's love for us through Christ by teachers and students alike.

Faith in the public square: LCMS youth starts pro-life group at her public high school By Cheryl Magness

At a time when biblical Christianity is under increasing attack in both popular culture and the public square, it can be scary to stand up for the sanctity of life.

But that didn't deter Anna Young, an LCMS pastor's daughter in Nashville, Tenn., from doing so. Several months ago, Anna started a Students for Life of America (SFLA) group at her public high school. It is the first such group at a public high school in Davidson County, Tenn.

"I think it is one thing to say you are pro-life, but it is another to actually act on that," Anna explains. "I think a lot of people keep their pro-life views to themselves, but I found myself questioning that. I always think of the Elie Wiesel quote, 'Neutrality helps the oppressor, never the victim.' ... I had to do something."

For Anna, that “something” could have easily remained within her family and church. She grew up being taught that life is sacred because it is created by God. Her father, the Rev. Phillip Young, is pastor at Redeemer Lutheran Church in Nashville and life coordinator for the LCMS Mid-South District, so Anna has participated in pro-life conferences and other events since she was a child. But she wanted to do more.

“This isn’t just a religious or political issue,” continues Anna. “It’s a human rights issue. ... People ask why I don’t keep this issue in the faith realm. Why did I have to extend it to the public arena of my high school?”

“My answer is simple. It is too important. Life is too precious — all life, at all stages, from all backgrounds and all parts of the world. Life is not just a political or religious issue, but a human rights issue. Once I truly understood the magnitude and reality of the injustice at hand, I couldn’t sit and watch my fellow peers not know the truth.”

Making a difference

Anna researched the guidelines for clubs at her school and began working through the steps to get approval for a Students for Life group. First, she had to find a faculty sponsor for the group. She says that wasn’t easy because “public high school teachers aren’t encouraged to voice their beliefs on this sort of thing.” But she approached a teacher she knew to be Christian, and the teacher was willing.

The next step was to fill out and submit an application for her proposed club, explaining the club’s purpose and plans and how its presence would benefit the school. Anna wrote to the school principal:

“The Students for Life community is a group of pro-life students that encourages students, specifically, but all people to choose life. Students for Life is found in over 1,100 high school and college campuses nationwide and is making a big difference. Although the matter at hand is controversial, I strongly believe our club would only be a positive influence This is a topic many students ... are passionate about.

“The purpose of our club is simple. We plan to educate, encourage and make a difference in the community.”

The club was approved. But “I would be lying,” says Anna, “if I said this process has been easy. At a public high school, abortion is not talked about. And if it is, it most definitely is not portrayed in the correct light.

“Since [the new group] was created ... I have lost friends, had my own character criticized, been gossiped about, and even experienced a bit of administration push-back regarding events we wanted to host at school. In the end, it is all worth it. I have to take a step back and look at the big picture. Pro-life ideals are being talked about at a public high school. That is a miracle in itself.”

To spread awareness about the club, Anna and the group’s core members participated in the school’s lunchtime club fair. They got about 55 initial sign-ups, approximately a quarter of whom were male students. They also got a handful of antagonistic comments on the sign-up sheet.

But the group now has about 20 active members, is meeting semi-weekly and is planning to attend the National March For Life in Washington, D.C., on Jan. 24. Locally, they plan to host monthly events such as volunteering at a local pregnancy resource center, holding a drive to collect mother and baby items for donation, and gathering for learning and mutual support.

Recently, they took time to write letters of encouragement to expectant mothers being served by Hope Clinic for Women, a faith-based family and pregnancy resource center in Nashville. In the near future, they hope to watch the movie “Unplanned,” based on the book by pro-life activist Abby Johnson.

‘Cut from determined cloth’

Elizabeth Parker, the Tennessee and Kentucky regional coordinator of Students for Life of America, and the organization's national minorities coordinator, worked closely with Anna in applying for the club's school charter. She also attended and spoke at the club's first meeting.

Parker said, "Sometimes it can be slow going getting SFLA clubs started at high schools and colleges. Hurdles can arise for all different reasons. Even though it took time and patience, Anna stuck to it. She is cut from determined cloth ... a leader who truly cares about her peers and community. She and the new Students for Life of America group at her high school are living proof that there is not only hope for the future, but amazing things [happening] in the present."

The Rev. Dr. Gregory P. Seltz, executive director of the Lutheran Center for Religious Liberty (LCRL) in Washington, D.C., says Anna is "just the kind of young person we're trying to raise up for the next generation. These moral issues are fundamental to our culture if it's to remain civil, humane and free. The LCRL is dedicated to providing all kinds of information and resources to support people like Anna."

Sometimes people of faith feel like "strangers in a strange land" (Ex. 2:22). They know their hope is not of this world, and they feel out of place in it. The world grows ever more hostile toward them, and when they engage with it in the only way they know how, guided by the faith that defines them, they are branded as fools, haters or worse. They may sometimes wonder why they should bother.

Anna says she bothers because "we are making a difference. It may feel like we're not doing anything ... not saving lives. But Elizabeth [Parker] has always told us, 'You won't see how many lives you saved until you get to heaven.'"

We moved the time up from 2:00 to 1:30 because that would give the attendees a little more social time. A letter about the service needs to be sent to the shut-ins about the first of April. Transportation was discussed. That will depend on what the attendees will need. We are thinking of serving ice cream sundaes and wafer cookies again during the social time.
